Upline Income Disclosure Statement

Nov 11, 2026

Upline's affiliate program is new, so we have no earnings history to report. We cannot tell you what a typical affiliate earns. Many affiliates may earn nothing.

1. No earnings history yet

The Upline affiliate program opens in December 2026. As of the date above, no affiliate has completed a full commission period, and we do not have reliable data on how much affiliates earn. Any figure we gave you now would be a guess, so we give none.

We will publish actual earnings figures after the program has run long enough to produce meaningful data (see section 4).

2. How affiliates can earn

Upline pays commissions on three levels: L1 is the affiliate who made the referral, and L2 and L3 are that affiliate's next two uplines. There are two kinds of commission.

	Software commissions	Data commissions
Paid on	Upline subscriptions bought by customers in your referral line	Upline's fee when a business you referred licenses its records to a buyer through Upline Data
Rates (L1 / L2 / L3)	30% / 15% / 5% of subscription cash collected	60% / 15% / 5% of Upline's fee (the buyer's referral fee plus 50% of any success fee)
To qualify	Active, paid Upline subscription in good standing, plus at least 3 personally referred active customers on full-priced plans	No subscription or customer requirement. Any user in good standing can earn.
How often	Monthly, while the customer stays active and paying	Only when a buyer actually pays Upline. Many referrals never lead to a deal.

Full details are in the Upline Affiliate Commission Plan. If this statement and the Commission Plan differ, the Commission Plan controls.

3. Costs and what affects earnings

Costs. You do not need to buy anything to earn data commissions. To earn software commissions, you need an active paid Upline plan, which currently costs $49 or $99 a month. You may also spend money on marketing, phone, internet, travel and other business costs. These costs reduce any profit you make.

What affects earnings. Your results depend on your own effort, skill, time, network and market, and on factors you do not control, including:

- Whether the businesses you refer qualify for and accept a buyer's offer
- Buyer demand, pricing and payment timing, which can take months
- Whether your customers stay subscribed
- Whether you, your customers and your uplines meet the eligibility rules

Commissions you are not eligible for are forfeited and are not paid later.

4. Estimates, income claims and updates

Estimates are not promises. Upline's earnings estimator and any example in our materials show how commissions are calculated on a hypothetical deal or subscription. They are not a prediction of what you will earn, and they are not typical results.

Income claims. Affiliates are not allowed to make income or lifestyle claims about Upline, except by linking to this statement. If an affiliate tells you that you will earn a specific amount, that statement is not authorized by Upline. Report it to help@upline.app.

Updates. We will update this statement with actual earnings data, such as the share of affiliates who earned any commission and the median and average amounts earned, once the program has completed its first full year, and at least once a year after that.
